

Jonathan Kim, MD, MSc, FACC, is an Associate Professor of Medicine and Director of Sports Cardiology at Emory University School of Medicine.

Dr. Kim earned his B.S. in biology at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, and he earned his M.D. at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville, Tennessee. He was also a Fulbright Scholar studying in Melbourne, Australia prior to medical school. Dr. Kim completed his residency in Internal Medicine and Pediatrics at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, Massachusetts, and he completed his fellowship in cardiovascular disease at Emory University School of Medicine, where he was chief fellow. He is board certified in cardiovascular disease and echocardiography. He is affiliated with Emory University School of Medicine.

Dr. Kim has been funded by the National Institutes of Health (NHLBI) and has published in numerous prestigious, peer-reviewed scientific journals such as New England Journal of Medicine, Journal of the American College of Cardiology, Circulation, and JAMA Cardiology, among others. He has delivered local and national invited presentations for the American College of Cardiology and American Heart Association. Dr. Kim is the Team Cardiologist for the Atlanta Falcons, Braves, Hawks, and Dream, and for Sports Medicine at Emory and Georgia Tech. He is also a member of the NBA Cardiac Advisory Committee, NFL Cardiovascular Task Force, and is a consultant for Major League Baseball and the Southeastern Conference (SEC). He is the Co-Medical Director for the Atlanta Journal Constitution Peachtree Road Race in Atlanta, GA. Finally, Dr. Kim is the Chair-Elect for the American College of Cardiology's Sports and Exercise Cardiology Council.